Role of Harbor Offshore, Inc.:

Subcontractor to receive, transport and surface lay cable

Date started:

June 2012

Date completed:

July 2012

General scope of the project:

In May of 2012, Cook Inlet Regional Inc. contracted with Cruz Construction of Palmer, Alaska to install two, 18,000 foot, 3-core single armor, 35 kv power cables between Anchorage and Fire Island as feeder cables for a new wind farm.

The nature of the work that was performed:

The crossing was tidal, with a 30 foot range. The barge would be dry twice a day and land based burial equipment would bury the cable at low tide.
